Excerpt: . . . of the fire is poised above him ready to strike the unworthy in his hour of triumph. Not far off is a bard whose flame is veiled by a red cloud (passion) and who lies prone, struck down by a guardians spear; but as he lies dying, a ray from the heart of the Supreme reaches him as a promise of future triumph in a later life. On the other side is a student of magic, following the light from a crown (ambition) held aloft by a floating figure who has led htm to the edge of the precipice over which for him there is no bridge; he holds his book of ritual and thinks the light of the dazzling crown comes from the Supreme, but the chasm awaits its victim. By his side his faithful follower falls unnoticed by him, but a ray from the heart of the Supreme falls upon her also, the reward of selfless devotion, even in a bad cause. Lower still in the underworld, a child stands beneath the wings of the foster mother (material Nature) and receives the equipment of the Knight, symbols of the powers of the Soul, the sword of power, the spear of will, the helmet of knowledge and the coat of mail, the links of which are made of past experiences. It is said in an ancient book: The Path is one for all, the ways that lead thereto must vary with the pilgrim....
